

Regarding wireless number portability, I am in favor of requiring the industry to adopt technology to allow customers to retain their mobile number when switching carriers. Many consumers utilize their wireless number as their main means of contact, and it is disingenuous to require consumers to have to notify everyone of a new wireless number should they change carriers. As a Fire Service professional, I would much appreciate not having to notify all the agencies with whom I communicate wirelessly, merely because my municipality changed carriers to save money. Thank you.
